Threads of Lawrence

From Saturday 1st September until Friday 21st December

Set against the backdrop of the D.H. Lawrence Birthplace Museum's historic rooms, textile artist Katharine Owen displays a fabric installation inspired by D.H. Lawrence and some of the key people who shaped his life. Katharine uses archive material, including old photographs, letters and papers as her source and inspiration. Embroidery, digital and traditional print and laser cutting techniques are all used to create uniquely layered pieces, which give an insight into Lawrence's background and identity. The exhibition forms part of the usual tour and entry cost of the D.H. Lawrence Birthplace Museum.

VENUE: D.H. Lawrence Birthplace Museum, 8a Victoria Street, Eastwood, Nottinghamshire, NG16 3AW

Concert, 'Beauvale Priory and the Carthusians'

The beautiful Catholic Church at Hill Top, with its important chapel dedicated to these two Saints, is a perfect place to house this concert, possessing a fine organ and good acoustics.

The programme, performed by the organist and composer Alan Wilson, together with friends, traces through music and words the formation, prosperity, destruction and resurrection of this important shrine. Reference is also made to D.H. Lawrence's short story 'A fragment of stained glass'.
